

Heat Stress Event

Kuehne's Safety Committee held a four - day event in July of 2016 that was intended to convey to all of our employees the dangers of working in the heat of the summer. We thought that it could prove valuable for everyone to know how to protect oneself from heat - related health issues, how to recognize the symptoms if they did occur, and how to react properly to them.

Employees relaxed and had burgers, hot dogs and fried chicken while watching the informative videos. The event ended with a quiz, and everyone answering each of the five questions correctly was entered into a drawing for a prize. South Kearny employees turned in perfect scores 81% of the time while the Delaware City employees scored a perfect 100%. Congratulations! The prize winners received an Amazon Echo; they were Rudy Fernandes from the South Kearny plant and Rich Furbush from the Delaware City plant.

We think that the event was a success and that most of the people involved enjoyed the event in the spirit that it was intended: a comfortable and enjoyable way in which to educate yourself and perhaps help someone in need in the future.

We would like to thank the Safety Committee Team who helped plan, organize and carry out this event. They are Jill Drazek, Violet Herring, Azade Zare Tabibi, Tony Dias and Pedro Pina.
